OUR MONUMENT.

What does it Mean?

This Monument of ours means a world of memories, a world of deeds, a world of tears, and a world of glories. You know, and thousands know what it is to offer up your life to the country and that is no small thing, as every soldier knows. But more than two million of men offered themselves and were ready to do just that thing—that's what our Monument means, and more, it means that one hundred thousand soldiers were prisoners of war. To many of them when death was stalking near, when famine was climbing into their hearts, and idiocy was threatening all that was left of their intellects, the gates of their prison stood open every day, if they would quit, desert their flag, and enlist under the flag of the enemy.

Out of one hundred and eighty thousand not two per cent. ever received the liberation from death, starvation and all that might come to them. But they bore all these horrors and all these sufferings in preference to going back upon the flag of their country and the glory of its truth. We can appreciate the significance of a remark that Gen. Garfield, our martyred President made at Plainsville, Ohio, at the dedication of a soldiers' monument, "Great God! was ever such measure of patriotism reached by any man on this earth before?"—this is what our Monument means. By the subtle chemistry that no man knows, all the blood that was shed by our comrades, all the lives that were sacrificed, at last crystalized itself into granite, rendered immortal the great truth for which they died. This is what our Monument means.

Now, what does it teach? What will it teach?—you remember the story of one of the old conquerors of Greece, who, when he had traveled in his boyhood over the battlefield where Miltiades had won victories and set up trophies, returning said: "These trophies of Miltiades will not let me sleep." Why something had taught him from the chiseled stone a lesson that he could never forget, and my comrades and worthy citizens of our noble old commonwealth, that silent sentinel, that crowned granite column supporting that figure, proud emblem of war, will look down upon the boys of this city and state, that may tread upon these beautiful walks leading to our handsome park, for generations to come and will not let them sleep when their country calls them. This is the teaching of our Monument—this is its lesson and it is the lesson of endurance for what we believe, and it is the lesson of sacrifice for what we think—the lesson of heroism for what we mean to sustain, and that lesson cannot be lost to a people who live in Connecticut. It is not a lesson of revenge, it is not a lesson of wrath, it is the grand, sweet, broad lesson of the immortality of the truth that we hope will soon cover us with the grand Shekinah of light and glory, all parts of this Republic from the lakes to the gulf.

In conclusion, I trust the time is not far distant "when our people shall sleep in peace and rise in liberty, love and harmony under the union of our flag of the stars and stripes."

LIEUT.-COL. ROBERT FITZGIBBONS, OF BRIDGEPORT.

Ninth Regiment, Connecticut Volunteers.

A soldier and Commander the members of the old 9th always loved and admired. He raised and served with his Company in the three months' service. He commanded the Regiment on the 5th of August, 1862, when Col. Cahill commanded the army who defeated the rebel army under Gen. Breckenridge—the anniversary of this event we celebrate to-day.

The Ninth Regiment was organized in September and October, 1861, at Camp English, New Haven, and was composed mainly of men of Irish birth. Colonel Thomas W. Cahill, Lieutenant-Colonel Richard Fitzgibbons, and Major Frederick Frye had the benefit of previous military experience,—the Colonel as captain of a company in the State Militia, and the other two as captains of companies in the three months' service. Recruiting for the Ninth proceeded slowly, and was somewhat retarded by lack of proper clothing and equipment. From the inception of the organization the regiment had been destined to form a part of General Butler's expedition for the capture of New Orleans, and on November 4th, with indifferent uniforms and without arms, the Ninth left New Haven by rail for Lowell, Mass., the rendezvous of Butler's New England Brigade. Here at "Camp Chase," the Ninth joined the Twenty-sixth Massachusetts Infantry, and on November 21, was ordered to Boston, leaving that point on the steamship "Constitution" for Ship Island, Miss., November 26th. General Butler accompanied the expedition, and it arrived at Ship Island on December 3d. The Ninth was at once landed, and receiving here, its tents and arms, went into camp. In the volume entitled "Connecticut during the Rebellion," page 140, the condition of the Ninth is thus described:—

"The men were still wretchedly clad, and it was midwinter. Nearly half of them were without shoes and as many more without shirts; several had no coats or blankets. Some drilled in primitive attire of blouse and cotton drawers. The tents were hardly capacious enough to cover them. There was no straw to sleep on. They were without transportation, and were obliged to bring the wood for their fires four miles. This was made into rafts, and men almost naked in water up to their arms, floated it down to camp. The Twenty-sixth Massachusetts was equipped with warm blankets, ample tents, and two uniform suits of clothing per man; and to them the members of the Ninth furnished a contrast which would have been amusing if it were not humiliating. With the buoyancy of the Irish character, the men were hopeful, and during these severe months sent home to their families not less than twenty thousand dollars,—almost their entire pay."

The Ninth remained in this camp until April 3, 1862, when, with a section of the Sixth Massachusetts Battery, it was ordered to Biloxi, Miss., to avenge the firing upon a flag of truce. On arriving at Biloxi the Ninth was landed;

but as the town was found deserted, the regiment returned on board the steamer and anchored off the town for the night. At four o'clock the next morning three rebel gunboats attacked the steamer, but the Federal gunboats "New London" and "Jackson" came to the rescue, and the rebel boats were driven off. The casualties in this affair were two members of the band and one member of Company C slightly wounded. The regiment then, under convoy of the gunboats, steamed to Pass Christian, reaching there at 11 o'clock a. m., and at once landing, started, with the section of the Sixth Massachusetts Battery accompanying it, after the enemy. They were soon found, but after firing a few shots, fled, leaving their entire camp equipage and the flag of the Third Mississippi Regiment in our hands. Captain Laurence O'Brien, among the first to reach the deserted tent of the Rebel commander, found on his table a dispatch to General Lovell, on which the ink was not dry, giving assurance that the place would be defended against the Federals at all hazards. The camp was burned, and the Ninth, re-embarking, returned to its camp at Ship Island. In recognition of the commendable bearing of the Ninth in this affair, General Butler issued the following General Order:

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE GULF,
April 12, 1862

GENERAL ORDERS No. 10.

The Major-General commanding desires publicly to testify his appreciation of the gallant courage and good conduct of the Ninth Connecticut Volunteers, Colonel Cahill commanding, and a section of the Sixth Massachusetts Battery, on a recent expedition to Biloxi and Pass Christian.

Of their bravery in the field he felt assured, but another quality, more trying to the soldier, claims his admiration. After having been for months subjected to the privations necessarily incident to camp life upon this island, these well disciplined soldiers, although for many hours in full possession of two Rebel villages filled with what to them were most desirable luxuries, abstained from the least unauthorized interference with private property and all molestation of peaceful citizens. This behavior is worthy of all praise.

The General commanding commends the action of the men of this expedition to every soldier in this department. Let it be imitated by all in the towns and cities we shall occupy, a living witness that the United States Soldier fights only for Union, the Constitution, and the enforcement of the laws.

By command of Maj.-Gen. BUTLER,
GEORGE C. STRONG, Adjutant-General.

On April 15th, the Ninth embarked under orders on the steamer "Matanzas" having in tow the transport "E. W. Farley," with the Twelfth Connecticut on board. On the evening of the 17th the "Matanzas" came to anchor at South West Pass, and remained there, or between the West Pass and Pilot Town, until after the capture of Forts Jackson and St. Phillip, when it proceeded up the river to New Orleans, and occupied the Reading Cotton Press. By order of General Butler the Ninth made a public parade through some of the principal streets of New Orleans, and was thus, the first Union regiment to whom such duty was assigned. The Ninth then entered upon provost duty in the city, with its camp on Lafayette Square. Colonel Cahill was assigned to command the defenses of the city ; Captain Silas Sawyer to the command of that portion of the city below the mint ; Captain Laurence O'Brien to the Parish of St. James; and Captain John G. Healy, with Companies C and F, to Lake Pontchartrain. An important capture was made on the lake by Captain Healy, Sergeants Connelly and Donohue, and Corporal Corcoran, by which the enemy lost a sloop laden with medical and other stores and a bag of valuable mail matter.

In June the Ninth joined the expeditionary corps under General Thomas Williams, for the destruction of "Camp Moore." From this point the Ninth went to a point on the Mississippi River opposite Vicksburg, and on June 25th was put to work, with other regiments, in cutting the famous canal which was expected to isolate Vicksburg by diverting the river away from its wharves and rendering them unapproachable to shipping. During the continuance of this work, a force of twenty picked men, under Captain Healy and Lieutenant Patrick Claffee, was crossed over the river in the cover of darkness, and remained in the swamp under the very guns of Vicksburg for eight days. The work was finally abandoned as no feasible, though not until the Ninth had suffered severe loss from the terrible exposure of the men.

The regiment returned to Baton Rouge, and left there on a steamer, June 20th, for Ellis Cliffs, where it arrived on the 22d, and disembarked with the Thirtieth Massachusetts, Fourth Wisconsin, and six guns of Nims's and Everett's batteries. After a march of several miles, information was received that the enemy with two guns and ninety mounted men, had decamped several hours before.

The Ninth re-embarked, and on the morning of June 29th, at 3 o'clock, Bayou Pierre was entered. After passing up the Bayou some nine miles the troops were landed at 11 a. m., at Barry's Plantation, four miles from Grand Gulf; but here, too, the enemy had decamped, leaving only a few sick. On June 24th the enemy was encountered at Hamilton's, near the Port Gibson railroad, and an action resulted in a loss to the enemy of three killed and five prisoners, with no loss to the Union force.

The next action in which the Ninth was engaged was the battle of Baton Rouge, on August 5th. At 3 o'clock that morning the Ninth moved out and took position on the extreme left of the line of defense. At 4 a. m. the action commenced, and the Ninth was soon moved to the support of the center of the line, and later to a cemetery on the left. Thirty-five men of the Ninth were detailed as artillerists to Nim's and Everett's Batteries. The casualties of the Ninth in this action were one killed, nine wounded and four missing. The Federal commander, General Thomas Williams, was killed and the command devolved upon Colonel Cahill, who admirably brought the action to a successful termination.

In General Orders, No. 57, Department of the Gulf, the Ninth is thus referred to: "Connecticut, represented by the sons of the ever green shamrock fought as their brothers did at Boyne Waters." During the battle, No. 2 gun of Nim's Battery, with every man and horse shot down, fell into the hands of the enemy, but men of the Twenty-first Indiana and the Ninth Connecticut made a desperate dash and brought off the gun.

On September 7th, the Ninth under Major Frye, participated with three other regiments in an expedition across the river to the vicinity of St. Charles Court House, the object being to capture or disperse a camp of two thousand infantry and cavalry stationed there. The Ninth, with the Fourteenth Maine, landed at daylight of the 8th at a point above Carrollton, and advanced westward, the other regiments going six miles farther up the river. In his official report of this action, Major Frye wrote :

"The artillery shelled the woods, but failing to dislodge the enemy, the Ninth was thrown forward as skirmishers. After moving forward several miles through woods, swamps, bayous, and canebrakes, everywhere finding traces of a flying foe, it was found that the enemy, most cavalry, attempting to break through in this direction had been driven back, and, abandoning their horses, saddles, and equipments, had fled into an almost impenetrable swamp. But being surrounded on all sides, our troops killed and wounded eight, taking about forty prisoners, and bringing in upwards of two hundred horses fully equipped. This was accomplished without loss."

After this fight the ninth returned to New Orleans, where its headquarters remained during 1863, though with the companies widely separated doing duty at different points. During this season a reconnoissance was made of the country north of the Manchac Pass, several companies of the Ninth participating. Two companies were stationed at the North Pass, dividing Jones Island from the swamp land and the road leading to Pontchaloula, and two rifled guns were placed in position here, manned by men of the Ninth under Captain John G. Healy. The expedition was a success. The enemy lost three and eleven wounded, and among the prisoners captured were twenty-two Choctaw Indians who were taken by a guard, commanded by Captain Healy, to New Orleans.

On December 30th, the Ninth was assigned to the Second Brigade of General Grover's Division. The regiment was in the engagements at Lafourche Crossing June 20th and 21st, and at Chattahoola Station June 24th.

In April, 1864, the Ninth started for New Haven on its veteran furlough, arriving and receiving an enthusiastic reception on the 15th. July 18th it left New Haven via New York and City Point for Bermuda Hundred, where it arrived on the 24th, and re-embarked on the 29th for Deep Bottom. It sailed again on July 30th for Washington, where it arrived on August 1st, and on the next day marched through Georgetown to Tennallytown, where it remained until the 14th, when, crossing the Potomac by chain bridge, it marched via Leedsburg and Snicker's Gap to Berryville, and thence on through the Shenandoah Valley. On September 19th it participated in the battle of Winchester, and then at Fisher's Hill.

At Cedar Hill all officers and men of the Ninth who had not re-enlisted as veterans left the service, and the veterans were organized as a batallion under the following Order :

HEADQUARTERS NINETEENTH ARMY CORPS,
NEAR CEDAR CREEK, VA.

October 12, 1864.

SPECIAL ORDERS, No. 59.

Extract:

Pursuant to Special Orders No. 53, Ex. 3, Headquarters Middle Military Division, the recruits and re-enlisted men of the Ninth Connecticut Volunteers will be consolidated into a Battalion of four companies to be commanded by Senior Captain.

The companies will be designated respectively as A, B, C, D, and the following will be the assignment of officers retained by Special Orders No. 53, Headquarters Middle Military Division:

Company A:

Captain, John G. Healy.
First Lieutenant, G. T. Scott.
Second Lieutenant, Thomas Connors.

Company B:

Captain, T. Sheridan.
First Lieutenant, M. Mullins.
Second Lieutenant, C. Streit.

Company C:

Captain, W. A. Lee.
First Lieutenant, D. C. Warner.
Second Lieutenant, J. H. Lincoln.

Company D:

First Lieutenant, J. W. Graham.
Second Lieutenant, to be selected.

The men will be assigned as follows: 98 men to Company A, 98 men to Company B, 98 men to Company C, and 90 men to Company D, to be assigned by senior officer.

The Non-Commissioned Staff will be retained.

By order of

Brevet Major-General, EMORY,

DUNCAN L. WALKER, A. A. G.

Under command of Captain Healy, the Ninth Battalion bore a very conspicuous part in the battle of Cedar Creek, October 19, 1864, its flag being the first planted on the recaptured works of the enemy. In this desperate action the Ninth lost thirty men in killed and wounded.

The battalion remained in Virginia until January 7, 1865, when it was ordered to Baltimore, and from there, on January 7, 1865, it embarked with the One Hundred and Seventy-fifth New York Infantry on board the steamer "General Sedgwick" for Fortress Monroe. From there the Ninth went to Savannah, Ga., arriving on January 17th. In April, the Ninth, under Lieutenant-Colonel Healy, was ordered to Dawfuski Island, where it dispersed a force of guerrillas who were oppressing and murdering the blacks, and then, returning to Havana, it was ordered to Hilton Head, S. C. Here it remained in service under General Q. A. Gillmore until the close of its active service, August 3, 1865, when it embarked for New Haven, and was finally mustered out.

With her garlands of victory around her,
When so proudly she bore her brave crew,
With her flag floating proudly before her,
The boast of the red, white and blue.
The boast of the red, white and blue,
The boast of the red, white and blue,
With her flag floating proudly before her,
The boast of the red, white and blue.

3 The Union, the Union forever,
Our glorious nation's sweet hymn,
May the wreaths it has won never wither,
Nor the star of its glory grow dim;
May the service united ne'er sever,
But they to their colors prove true!
The army and navy forever,
Three cheers for the red, white and blue.
Three cheers for the red, white and blue,
Three cheers for the red, white and blue,

THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER.

SOLO.

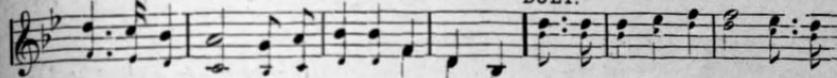

1. O say, can you see by the dawn's early light, What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming; Whose broad stripes and bright stars thro' the perilous fight, O'er the ramparts we watched were so gallant-ly streaming. And the rocket's red glare, the bombs burst-ing in air, Gave proof thro' the night that our Flag was still there.

DUET.

CHORUS.

O say does the star-spangled ban-ner yet wave, O'er the-
 And the star-span-gled ban-ner for-ev-er shall wave, O'er, &c.
 And the star-span-gled ban-ner for-ev-er shall wave, O'er, &c.

land of the free and the home of the brave.

2 And war's clamors o'er, with her mantle hath peace
 Once again, in its folds, the nation enshrouded;
 Let no fratricide hand, uplifted e'er be
 The glory to dim which now is unclouded:
 Not as North or as South in the future we'll stand,
 But as brothers united throughout our broad land. Cho.

3 O thus be it ever when freemen shall stand
 Between their loved homes and the war's desolation;
 Blest with vict'ry and peace, may the heaven-rescued land
 Praise the power that has made and preserved us a nation.
 Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
 And this be our motto—"In God is our trust." Cho.

UNION DIXIE.

Dr. McNEAL.

Arr. by B. J.

1. Of our country's name and glo-ry, Of her sons who live in sto-ry! Let us sing, Let us sing, Let us sing, Let us sing, For a thousand memories cluster Round a past undim'd in lustre, While we sing, While we sing, While we sing, While we sing.

CHORUS. Allegro.

And in the fu - ture we can see, Still waving, still waving, The starry banner of the free, Upborne by its own des - ti - ny, Still waving, still waving, A - bove a hap - py people, Still waving, still waving, A - bove a hap - py people.

2 As we gaze upon our nation,
And its burning constellation,
||: Bravely won, bravely won.:||
Let us ever be stout-hearted,
Even as the great departed,
||: Washington, Washington.:||
CHO.—True to the soil that gave us birth,
For ever, for ever,
We love it for its native worth,
And swear to consecrate its earth,
||: For ever, for ever,
To liberty and glory.:||

A PAYMENT DOWN AND $1.00 A WEEK, OR $2.00 A WEEK,

according to the price of the piano. You have only to visit the warerooms of Charles H. Loomis, 833 Chapel Street, to appreciate their crowded condition. Charles H. Loomis has the largest stock of new and second-hand pianos shown in the State of Connecticut. Anyone contemplating the purchase of a piano should certainly call at this well known and reliable emporium, and they cannot fail to find a piano that will suit them, both regarding the price and terms.
